SOY BEANS

Soy beans will soon be grown in every field of silage corn. They are highly recommended by the Agricultural College, Farm papers, and the most progressive farmers.

The crop is leguminous and therefore corn planted with soy beans will make a bigger growth than where it is grown alone, and besides the beans furnish several tons of green forage per acre and make silage 50% richer in protein.

Soy beans have a high fertilizing value, the roots and nodules leaving 75 to 100 pounds of nitrogen an acre in the soil which at ordinary fertilizer prices is worth at least $20.00 per acre. Big crops always follow soy beans.

Mammoth Yellow Soy Beans make the tallest growth, biggest yield and stay green the longest. They are the variety to plant for silage. Mix $\frac{1}{4}$ beans and two thirds corn in your planter this year and get some real silage. One bushel beans is enough for ten acres.

We have had such a big demand for this variety that we have now purchased a carload which is expected to arrive about May 1st. We bought them right in the producing country in Virginia at a low price and can therefore offer them at a bargain.

PRICE PER BUSHEL OF 60 POUNDS

Golden Glow Seed Corn

Our own strain which we have bred up by the ear-to-row method for ten years until we have established a very early, heavy yielding strain. Desirable both for silage and for cribbing purposes. Grown in Dakota, latitude of Fond du Lac from our own best seed which we furnished our growers last spring. Just as early maturing and heavy yielding as our Wisconsin grown stock. Kiln dried, testing 92% to 96%.

Price, $4.00 per bushel.

Sacks extra at 60c each.

Send in your order for these seeds today.

We guarantee all our seeds to be perfectly satisfactory or they may be returned and full amount paid including freight charges will be refunded, but we will not be responsible for any greater amount.
